MICROCOSMOS

Enter the surprising world of Microcosmos, where the tiny becomes gigantic. A giant grasshopper cyborg is shaking its legs, while acrobats and electric violinists are playing on them. The head exhales smoke at the spectators and moves it from right to left. It is followed by a fully mechanical spider which comes to entertain the public by waterspraying them.

These two structures, that are pushing the limits of nature and mechanics, are accompanied by insects on stilts, mysterious and curious to see the world from so high.

In the daytime, the details of the show are blurred but at night, the lighting effects are simply magic. Both times, these amazing insects will take your breath away.

THE LEGEND OF THE OCTOPUSSY

Coming straight ahead from the magical and fantastic universe of Jules Verne, Octopussy, the huge colourful octopus, hangs on the Nautilus. Out of the sea, the Octopussy waves its huge transparent tentacles, which change the colours right above the head of the spectators, with curiosity and grace. Leading the way to the submarine, the deep-sea divers of another time progress slowly and amazingly. They blow kilometers of ribbons at the spectators. On its way, this extraordinary procession gives a hint of magic to both children and adults, who are charmed by the colours and peaceful movements of the Octopussy and its acrobat while the bubbles follow their procession.

Roaring, moving its huge head above the public, the dragon, fearless, shows its impressive teeth and leaves the spectators breathless while it is blowing smoke. Captured by a troop of fantastic characters, some on stilts, some on their heads, some trying to tame him, the dragon will finally let humans domesticate him and the air acrobats dance on a red tissue from its mouth for an amazing final show.
